

2010 AAAS Annual Meeting

Call for Poster Judges

Student Poster Competition

Saturday, 20 February

San Diego

The American Association for the Advancement of Science (AAAS), publisher of the journal Science, is seeking scientists, engineers, and other professionals to serve as judges for the AAAS Student Poster Competition. Judges receive a deeply discounted meeting registration rate and have the opportunity to meet colleagues from across the nation and around the world as well as help to mentor the next generation of scientists and engineers. The entrants in the student competition are college undergraduate and graduate students. The number of judges for each category will be calculated according to the number of entries received. Judges will be needed for a minimum of one hour, and up to a maximum of two hours, if judging one of the larger categories.

If your schedule will not permit you to serve as a judge, please give this flyer to any of your professional colleagues who might be interested in judging and receiving the steeply discounted registration rate of $110.

2010 AAAS ANNUAL MEETING

Poster Judge Response Form

Name: _____

Affiliation: _____

E-mail: _____ Phone : _____

Check area(s) of expertise:

Brain and Behavior
Cellular and Molecular Biology
Developmental Biology, Physiology, and Immunology
Environment and Ecology
Math, Technology, and Engineering
Medicine and Public Health
Physical Sciences
Science in Society
Social Sciences

Please send completed form to:

AAAS Annual Meeting
 c/o Kim Klyberg
 1200 New York Ave., NW
 Washington, DC 20005

If you have questions, contact Kim Klyberg at meetings@aaas.org or (202) 326-6450.